class schedule & descriptions: more original than the lyrics to jingle bell rock.....*

beginning knitting: tis the season to give yourself and your loved ones the coziness of knitting. go with me on this one, the song might say roasted chestnuts, but the best thing to do with an open fire is to sit and knit something warm and soft. plus...no messy clean up and no possibly exploding nuts. (let's be honest exploding nuts are far from cozy and more alarming than the pleasant clicking of needles) besides once you learn to knit you can make homemade gifts for the people you love. its like a gift that you give yourself that later everyone benefits from.

sat. dec. 10.....10-noon

* jingle bell time, jingle bell square, jingle horse...its like adjectives were being rationed "hey joe, should we even try to rhyme jingle with anything or just use it to describe everything we see?" if you look hard on the internet you can find a long lost fourth verse that talks about a jingle bell lamp on a jingle bell end table. originality has never been something that we have lacked here at yarn. heck we make up our own words for pete's sake. here's hoping you have a uniquely delightful holiday season! don't forget to save me some eggnog! cheers....shannon
